ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

At Tamburlaine Organic Wines, we are committed to establishing, maintaining and promoting a culture of environmental responsibility, not only within our property borders, but also in the broader community as a whole.

We will ensure that our businesses environmental impact is minimised and that all staff work together to achieve environmental best practice.

We will take into account the environmental consequences of all our activities, including, but not restricted to, farming, manufacturing, administration, maintenance and purchasing.

In keeping with this commitment we will;

Incorporate environmental awareness and responsibility into our core business and promote our environmentally sound practices to the broader community.

Work to prevent pollution and minimise negative environmental impacts through the selection of appropriate materials, processes, equipment and services.

Practice responsible water, energy and materials management including waste minimisation, reuse and recycling.

Manage available resources to meet or exceed the requirements set by environmental legislation & regulations.

Implement the Environmental Management System achieving specific objectives, targets and responsibilities across our organisation consistent with the requirements of entities such as B.F.A./A.C.O., (Biological Farmers of Australia / Australian Certified Organic, under AQIS).

Identify opportunities for continuous improvement and constant progression towards best practice in environmental management.
